Meet the Sanchez family.

Ms. Sanchez was exhausted and overwhelmed when she called Thornwell's Building Families team. Her daughters, Jenna and Jolie, didn't get along, and her oldest was especially aggressive and disobedient. Ms. Sanchez was personally struggling with anxiety, and she was unable to find mental health services in her community. It had all become too much, and she knew she couldn't do it alone.

Because of you, Ms. Sanchez was met with loving care and support.

Thornwell's Building Families Specialist met with Ms. Sanchez and the girls in their home and on their schedule. The specialist helped them diffuse their tension, and it wasn't long before the girls began opening up to each other.

After a few visits, the Sanchez girls were connecting and communicating in healthy ways, for the first time in a long time. And, because all relationships take work, the girls also learned invaluable coping skills to combat the breakdowns as they occurred. Progress!

Ms. Sanchez said, "It [Building Families] gave us hope for a brighter future and inspiration to keep going."
